(Trenton) The New Jersey Association of Counties (NJAC) will swear-in Hudson County Freeholder Jeffrey Dublin as its 72nd President at 11:00 a.m. on January 28, 2013 in the Senate Chambers of the State House.

“I look forward to leading NJAC this year as it continues serving county governments throughout the State with its progressive advocacy, comprehensive research and analysis, and solution driven approach to addressing complex legislative and regulatory matters,” said Hudson County Freeholder and NJAC President Jeffrey Dublin.

Senate President Stephen M. Sweeney (D-Gloucester) will provide keynote remarks and long-time friend Senator Sandra B. Cunningham (D-Hudson County) will administer the oath of office. Following the ceremony, culinary arts students from County Prep High School in the Hudson County Schools of Technology will provide lunch to invited guests at the New Jersey State House Museum.

“I’m confident that under the leadership of Hudson County Freeholder Jeffrey Dublin, a man with a rich history of service to his county, his community, and family – NJAC will continue to serve as an invaluable asset to county governments across the State dedicated to implementing cost-saving measures that result in a more efficient government and at a lesser cost to New Jersey’s taxpayers,” commented Senator Sandra B. Cunningham.

NJAC is committed to advocating for legislation, regulations, and policy directives that empower county governments to operate more effectively and efficiently. As a non-partisan organization that represents the only true regional form of government in the State with a unified and proactive voice, NJAC is dedicated to advancing innovative programs and initiatives that enhance the level of service provided and save valuable taxpayer dollars.
